Confers With Her Counsel.

Philip Carpenter, one of Mrs. Chadwlck's counsel, had a two hours' conference with her after her arrest. Mr. Carpenter said he would represent Mrs. Chadwick tomorrow at the proceedings before United States Commissioner Shields. If she is able to give bail she will remain at her present quarters; if not, she will have to go to fail. At present he would oppose any suggestion of her going back to Ohlo.

"Mrs. Chadwick has not to my knowledge, had any communication with Mr. Carnegie, nor has he bail any communication.

"Mrs. Chanwick has not, to my knowledge, had any communication with Mr. Caracgie, nor has he had any communication with her today. I refuse to say onything about the Caracgie note, as this is an Olio matter and has not come to my knowledge. Mrs. Chadwick will make no statement to the public. She is bearing up admirably under the strain and will appear to answer the charges against her."

The company's counted appealed the case, and it was retried before the late Judge Gresham.

"The latter held that the complainant should have made himself acquainted with the condition of the elevator before taking the risk of running it. His directions to the jury were to the effect that the company was not responsible for the accident. So the jury brought in a verdict exonerating the company and the $15,000 Judgment went glimmering.

"The company, however, recognized that O'Brien, who had been long in its service, was smitted to some compensation, and therefore offered him, through his lawyer, $1000. This the lawyer sitvised him not to accept, as he had good grounds for an appeal and would probably set Judgment in his favor on a third trial. LONDON, Dec. 7.-The Daily Telegraph's correspondent in front of Port Arthur, cabling under date of December 7, says that the Russlans ceased their atempts to recapture 26-Meter hill on Deember 6. The report from Tientsin states that the Japanese shell fire at Port Arthur also mank the Russian battleship Penesylei, but no further news concerning the fortress has reached London.

The report that Emperor Nicholas has decread the dispatch of a third squadron to the far East has no confirmation from any quarter. The Associated Press dispatches, representing that the question is merely under consideration, gives the latest rehable information on the situation. In connection with the story from St. Petersburg of negotiations with Turkey for the purchase of Argentine and Chilean cruisers, a curious feature is the fact that the Ottoman Embassy in London recurring that there was no foundation for rumors that Turkey was purchasing or intending to purchase Argentine men-of-war, "either for her own use or for the use of any other power."

Russia's efforts some time ago to negotiate the purchase of seven Argentine and Chilean warships have had a curious sequel. The two South American construes declined to sell the vessels direct to Bussia fearing the possibility of being subsequently held liable to pay Japan heavy damages as Great Britain was in the Alabama case.

At that time the question of selling to a third party as an intermediary was discossed and the possibility of Turkey playing the role was suggested. But Argentina and Chile steadfastly declined to entertain any proposition without a guarantee against future liability.

According to the story, Russia then abandoned the project, whereupon Great Eritain stepped in, offering to advance the money to Turkey to buy the ships in return for certain concessions which would arrent Carl Pedia Proposition within the project of the ships in return for certain concessions which would arrent Carl Pedia Proposition within the project of the project of the ships in return for certain concessions which would arrent Carl Pedia Proposition within the project of the ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 7.—The millitary strength of Russia is still untouched by the present war according to an of-netal report at the War office. Of the 764 districts in Bussia there has been thus far partial mobilization in 42 districts, and in seventy-four of the latter only a few categories were touched. In none are the reserves exhausted. The regular establishment includes a guard and granadler corps, two cavalry corps and twenty-three regular corps, exclusive of two in the Caucanus, two in Turkestan and the Siberian corps. The whole squadron, the dispatch adds, it is hoped will be fitted out in two months. Probably it will be commanded by either Vice-Admiral Dnubassofi or Vice-Admiral Choukain. Idea of Constitution.

Idea of Constitution.

In the meantime the revolutionary organizations have promulgated their idea of a constitution which has been circulated by tens of thousands throughout Russia. It is composed of forty-two articles and is modeled partly upon the American and partly upon the British systems. Supreme authority is vested in the Empetor and a Congress of two houses, called the imperial Douma. The upper house, or landhouse, is to consist of representatives elected by provincial zemstros and doumas of the larger cities, one representatives elected by provincial zemstros and doumas of the larger cities, one representatives elected by secreticallot from districts having 20,000 population, and the lower or town house to consist of representatives elected by secreticallot from districts having 20,000 population, by manhood suffrage, except persons in the military, naval or police service, or disqualified by crime.

The proposed constitution provides for responsible Ministers to sit under the presidency of the Imperial Chancellor, all subject to impeachment. The empire is to be divided for self-government movements into districts, or communes, called zemstvos. The administration of law is incumbent upon judges, who may not be removed except by court sentence.

Noise of Cannonade.

PEKING, Dec. 7.—Mukden reports a tremendous noise of cannonade around Poutiloff hill and the railway, which began December 6 in the morning and reached its height from 2 to 5 in the afternoon. It was unlike anything of the kind heretofore, except at Port Arthur. The effect is due to the constantly increasing number of siege guns of large caliber, all of which seemed to be in use at the time. Rumors of Japanese attacks at various dates have been current during the past two weeks and it was the impression that the bombardment of December 6 was in anticipation of a Japanese of-

Petrified Indians.

Joe De Champ, a backwoodsman living in the Thief River Falls region, in northern Minnesota, has laiely been engaged in removing the remains of Indians from their graves in the lands soon to be opened to settlement. The bodies he reburles in places outside the ceded lands, Among the stories of his experiences in the former cometery of the aborigines is one regarding the finding of several perfectly petrified bodies, and the uncanny feeling which one has when he listons to the account is intensified at the end, when it is related that one of the petrified aborigines was used as a hitching post, while another served as a cigar sign. Eight man worked with Joe digging for the bodies of the dead Indians, Joe receives $1450 for each corpse from the Government; therefore he is exceedingly industrious. The moonbeams, filtering through the branches of the pines, shone down on Joe one night as he labored with pick and spade. Encountering what appeared to be a stone, Joe laid aside his abovel, mooped his sweaty face, and then set to work with a pick. Joe is a callous man, used to looking commosedly on grinning skulls and heaps of hones, but when he saw there, in the uncertain light, the grim countenance of a real red man, sticking up in the hole he had made he fied for his assistants roused them from their sleep, and enlisted their services in calming his perturbed mind and in completing the removal of the body. Finally the report reached the Chippewa village, and then there was more trouble for De Champ, who had various heart-to-heart talks with industring red people.

The upshot of it all was that the cigar sign and the hitching post have been decently buried—if indeed, the bodies were ever used for that purpose. The petritied bodies, almost perfectly preserved, were removed from the shallow grave with difficulty. Near by another body was encountered in the same condition and laid aside while the work of removing the other mortal remains progressed. It so han pers that De Champ is a great joker, and when the story of the petrified cigar Indian and the aberiginal hitching past got around, his friends began 1.4 sisk about his resurrection operations with mock seriousness.
